Hi Test First Name,

Did you know that the average person spends around 90,000 hours of their life at work or working? Jobs and careers have always played a central role in how we define ourselves and understand the world. But what exactly is work?

There's no one way to define it. In a wireless, global, connected world of emerging industries, the idea of "work" is changing. The images you use should show it.

Whether you're a freelancer, blogger, entrepreneur, businessperson, or artisan, you get it done. Our latest shoots are all about portraying the various ways we go to work.

We love the idea of rethinking the world we live in and challenging accepted norms and ideas. You're redefining the way you work, and so are we - with beautiful stock images that tell more than one story.

Work wonders with Rawpixel.

The images in this email are all Rawpixel originals. They'll be added over the next several weeks to the free image library available to subscribers (that's you!) at Rawpixel.com. If you like what you see, be sure to check back at the website often.
