
New Research: Social Issues and Movements of Interest for Young Americans

Derrick Feldmann <info@causeandsocialinfluence.com>
Reply-To: info@causeandsocialinfluence.com
To: cindy@influencesg.com

Thu, Oct 24, 2019 at 8:30 AM

What social issue do today's young Americans (ages 18-30) care most about? Climate change, according to the research report being released this morning:

INFLUENCING YOUNG AMERICA TO ACT 2019

Download the Report Now

The report answers these questions and more:

- What institutions do Gen Z and millennials trust the most?
- How concerned are young men about women's movements?
- Do young Americans think voting is worthwhile?
- Is the country currently on or off track ... and is it better or worse than before the 2016 election?

Influencing Young America to Act reveals:

- Top 5 social issues of concern (overall and by gender and generation)
- Top 5 social movements of concern (overall and by gender and generation)
- 7 key findings from research analysis
- Where Gen Z and millennials get their news ... and what they think about "fake news"

... and much more.

Watch Live to hear about the findings from lead researcher Derrick Feldmann at the Influence Nation Summit today at 1:30 PM EDT.

Watch Live

Download the Report Now

INFLUENCE|SG | 829 Main St., Indianapolis, IN 46220

Unsubscribe cindy@influencesg.com

About Constant Contact

Sent by info@causeandsocialinfluence.com