Greetings!

It gives me great pleasure to introduce the inaugural edition of the Leadership Landing newsletter. Every month Leadership Landing will share insights, commentary, tips, and best practices on what it takes to lead with intention. We'll also highlight content from the Leadership Landing blog and feature a Champion Moment from our clients and the leaders we admire in the world.

Every great leader has an inherent desire to change for the better, for themselves and for their organizations. Groundbreaking, life-changing, mindful progress begins with understanding where you are, how you got there, and where you're going.

Leading with purpose has always been a mission of mine. Too often we forget that the path to greatness takes time—it's a marathon, not a sprint. Cultivating conscious decision-making skills allows us to take a step back, to see the big picture. Leaning into the power, strength, and wisdom of being authentic with ourselves and our experience provides an opportunity for us to become more self-aware. And in doing so, you own your experience and all the opportunities for growth it creates along the way. I appreciate you taking the time to be present with us on this journey. Of course, if you prefer to not receive this newsletter, you can opt-out at any time.

Yours on the journey,
Hal

ANNOUNCING...

When you start with your strengths and work through the lens of the Five Attributes of Great Leaders—self-awareness, bravery, kindness, innovation, and inspiration—you have the ability to effect powerful change in your role as a leader. The potential for greatness is impacted by how well you implement and integrate the Five Attributes into your leadership development process. Our Executive and Team Coaching services complement our proprietary 360 feedback process, identifying those areas that need the most attention.

Leadership Landing, like you, is on the path to greatness. We have made great strides in improving our assessment tools, and are excited to launch two new products: 360 Assessment and 360 Assessment Plus. These added-value packages introduce real-time feedback, video and audio tutorials, customized reporting, and streaming guided mindfulness meditations, as well as exclusive access to the newly launched Leadership Landing forum that personally connects you to our coaching team and community.
