

A COMPANY THAT PLAYS TOGETHER, STAYS TOGETHER.

That philosophy is what makes Powderkeg Web Design a Best Places to Work in 2017.

"We foster friendships as a group here and try to go out as much as possible. We go out together after work on an almost a weekly basis," said James Roloff, Sales Director.

Whether it's bringing in a catered lunch once a month or meeting out at Wisconsin Brewing Company after work, the employees collaborate together in both work and fun.

At one point, for two years, they even had their own softball team.

"That didn't work out too well. It was fun to hang out but our skill level wasn't there," said Director of Operations Dylan Thompson.

The team never loses sight of their clients and their mission to work together to help build custom websites for clients in a variety of industries.

"Being very client-centric allows our employees to enjoy their jobs," Roloff said.

To encourage that teamwork, four years ago the Powderkeg remodeled their office, tearing down cubicle walls and creating a more open environment to work in.

"The collaboration with the team we've built here is about as natural as it gets," Thompson said.
