FRESH IS BEST

→ I go to the farmers market once or twice a week to buy all of our produce. I love buying seasonal fruits and vegetables, and I love supporting local farmers. Make sure to stop by Lily's Eggs for delicious eggs and beautiful fragrant roses! If you go on Saturday, I recommend getting there early to get the fresh pastries before they sell out. www.smgov.net/portals/farmersmarket

THINGS TO LOVE ABOUT THE LITTLE MARKET

1. We have the best gifts!
2. Our Shop by Cause feature
3. We put the planet first

HEART FOR CHANGE

We are a mission-driven nonprofit organization committed to alleviating poverty and empowering artisan women in underserved communities around the world.

"I've been so honored to be surrounded by an incredible community that inspires and motivates me every day."

FOR THE HOMIES

→ I love buying baked goods from Homegirl Café. I always buy their rainbow bread for my daughter—it has the most incredible tie-dye look. I love that every purchase supports job opportunities for people who were previously incarcerated. Ask for a tour to learn more about the amazing work they do! www.homeboyindustries.org

SHOP SMALL

→ I like to support small businesses that are run by women. Cami and Jax is a very cute bathing suit store on Montana Avenue that is founded and run by two sisters! You are likely to meet one of the sweet sisters while you shop in their cozy store. Try on a few different styles—you will be pleasantly surprised by how flattering their cuts are! www.camiandjax.com

GLOBAL GOODS

→ At our shop, The Little Market, global one-of-a-kind items are our specialty. Each item we sell is handmade, so each piece is truly special. The kantha quilts are stunning and each is unique—it's so fun to shop them in person! They are hand-stitched by women who are at-risk and survivors of trafficking. www.thelittlemarket.com

FOR THE LITTLE ONES

→ Little Moon Society produces their adorable line of tie-dye clothes right here in LA! My kids have grown up in their soft and colorful pieces. If you love it, buy it because each collection sells out quickly. ■ www.littlemoonociety.com
