

Our adventure IN VENICE

Perfect Wedding's Clemmie Robinson and her fiancé Adam fall in love with the sinking city

As you speed into Venice on the back of your own private water taxi (very James Bond), you will be struck by the beautiful old buildings that sit on the banks of the world-famous canals. Among them is our hotel – a 16th century former convent which has now been converted into the luxurious Bauer Palladio Hotel & Spa.

Inside, the hotel is the perfect mix of old meets new with period features such as marble floors and high ceilings, combined with big, comfy beds and a state-of-the-art spa.

We took a short boat shuttle straight across the water to tourist-favourite San Marco square where you can admire more of the stunning architecture and watch the street performers. From here you can stroll the winding streets browsing the Murano glass as you munch on gelato.

“The hotel is the perfect mix of old meets new”

If all this sounds like too much hard work simply relax in a piazza with a Venetian ‘Spritz’ (Aperol and prosecco – yum!) and watch the world go by.

After a hard day of gondola riding and sightseeing you’ll want to visit the L’Ulivo restaurant where you can enjoy a traditional Italian dinner (who doesn’t love a pasta course?!). We definitely recommend ordering some delicious red wine from the nearby Friuli region too.

After a weekend of being thoroughly treated we head home with smiles on our faces and slightly rounder bellies – Venice really is the perfect short-haul honeymoon.

Don’t miss: San Marco Square – the heart of Venice.

We stayed: At the amazing Bauer Palladio Hotel & Spa palladiohotelspa.com

Best for: Romantic couples who love great food and culture.
