

Germany and the Middle East, 1871-1945

Wolfgang G. Schwanitz (ed.): Germany and the Middle East, 1871-1945.

Markus Wiener Publishers, Princeton New Jersey

2019 [Barnes & Noble, 11/27/2019, New Cover]

WorldCat, Near Eastern Studies,
Middle Eastern History
244 pp., Paperback $28.95

(incl. selected historical maps, pictures and docs),

ISBN-13: 9781558762985 - ISBN 1558762981

(incl. selected historical maps, pictures and documents, incl. bibliography, index)

hardcover 268 pp.,
$89.95, ISBN 155876299X, 9781558762985

Before World War II, Germany intended Italy to be the main organizing power in the Middle East, replacing British and French rule. A Greater Arabia was to be set up under the influence of the Axis powers of Germany, Italy, and Japan. But initial German victories in the war, particularly the fall of Paris, changed everything. Now the Middle East became a potential battlefield at the crossroads between Asia, Africa, and Europe. For instance, Ankara sent Berlin essential raw materials for its war industry like chrome ore, and it was where the Nazis sold looted gold (mainly confiscated from Jews) for foreign currency. As in World War I, the Germans tried to incite Arab populations to jihad against the allied nations. As the war against the USSR dragged on and the tactics of "Blitzkrieg" failed, the Middle East became more and more important for the Nazis.

After the fall of Moscow they regarded this region as the next main battleground for crushing the British Empire, as Adolf Hitler revealed to the Grand Mufti of Jerusalem in late 1941, adding that after his victory against the Russians he would pursue the Jews in the Middle East as he was doing already in occupied Europe.

New historical studies about Germany and Afghanistan, the relations between Berlin and Riyad, German archeological research, Arab inmates in Nazi concentration camps, German Middle Eastern paradigms and prominent Germans like Dr. Fritz Grobba, Franz von Papen, and Oskar Ritter von Niedermayer provide here deep insights into that period and region of world history.

This collection of essays that was developed from a special issue of the Princeton Papers in Middle Eastern Studies, includes also selected historical maps, pictures and documents, some of which are published here for the first time. The contributions to this volume are as follows:

Germany and the Middle East, 1871-1945

Wolfgang G. Schwanitz: The German Middle Eastern Policy, 1871-1945

Thomas L. Hughes: The German Mission to Afghanistan, 1915-1916

Hans-Ulrich Seidt: "When Continents Awake, Island Empires Fall!": Germany and the Destabilization of the East, 1919-1922

Wolfgang G. Schwanitz: The Jinnee and the Magic Bottle: Dr. Fritz Grobba and the German Middle Eastern Policy, 1900-1945

Uwe Pfullmann: German-Saudi Relations and Their Actors on the Arabian Peninsula, 1924-39

Stefan R. Hauser: German Research on the Ancient Near East and its Relation to Political and Economic Interests from Kaiserreich to World War II

Karl-Heinz Roth: Berlin-Ankara-Baghdad: Franz von Papen and the German Near Eastern Policy during the Second World War

Gerhard Höpp: In the Shadow of the Moon: Arab Inmates in Nazi Concentration Camps

Editorial Reviews

"A success." — Journal of Palestine Studies

"Detailed insights into German interest toward the Middle East, German traditions, Afghanistan, and the Israeli-Palestinian conflict." — Middle East Policy

"Excellent overview... This anthology presents highly valuable information as well as paradigms that shed new light on contemporary events." — German Studies Review

