Want to avoid webcam hacking?

No need to cover the lens of your webcam with tape. We have a solution.

Should You Cover Your Webcam?

Webcam privacy protection is more important today because every day, thousands of devices are hacked. Intruders scan the Internet in search for webcam cameras that are open for viewing. A webcam cover is the best option to prevent intrusion.

About Our Product

The Kamshield webcam cover is elegantly designed to fit securely over the webcam of the laptop, Chromebook, iPad, or tablet, and it provides privacy protection from spying eyes. It's easy to install. Just peel and stick the Kamshield over your computer's camera.

Ever Feel Like Someone's Watching You?

It's scary; someone could be watching and recording you right now, and your actions could become public. In seconds, cybercriminals and voyeurs can secretly take over and control the camera on laptops, desktop computers, and mobile devices – giving them access to images and video of your most intimate moments.

Meet the Founder of Kamshield

Kameron Miller, the founder of Kamshield, created the webcam cover after her computer was compromised leaving her to feel vulnerable and unsafe. She soon realized there was very little protection to prevent hackers from accessing a device's camera. Kameron was driven to protect her children and every other smart device user.

Kameron is no stranger to entrepreneurship; her innovative and forward-thinking abilities have always played a significant role in bringing value to a business. Kameron has deep expertise in strategic planning, growth strategy, and execution. She has more than a decade of experience in collaborating with businesses to increase their value. Kameron's passion is to help build, inform, and support one another to make the world safe for our children and the future.

You are in control of your webcam.

We live in a digital world where we always communicate which makes us vulnerable. Internet-connected cameras may expose us to potential breaches in privacy. The exploitation of sensitive data exposure can be dramatic. Your private moments or work secrets may be compromised. A sliding webcam cover protects you and your family from prying eyes.

Kamshield Has a Big Heart

Five percent of all Kamshield sales are donated to P.S. I Love You Foundation, a nonprofit dedicated to nurturing youth through social and emotional learning programs. Kameron chose the foundation to help teach children about cyber safety and the dangers associated with technology. According to a nationwide survey that measures technology use among children 8 years old and younger the amount of time young children spend on mobile devices has tripled in the last four years.

It is imperative for parents, teachers, and children to know the dangers of what's behind the screen," says Kameron. Growing up with five sisters also led to an increase of female empowerment in her household. "I want to empower mothers, sisters, and daughters from all over the world.

Having my computer hacked was something I never thought would happen to me – but it did. Don't let this happen to you – get the Kamshield webcam cover and keep yourself and your family safe.

Cassidy Wolf

Kamshield Teams Up with Former Miss Teen USA Cassidy Wolf

As a victim of cyberstalking, former Miss Teen USA Cassidy Wolf gained the ability to understand and discuss the importance of protection against internet voyeurs. While studying at college, Cassidy learned her private information was compromised and that she was being filmed through her webcam by a former high school classmate. Cassidy's encounter was devastating, but she refused to let it affect the rest of her life, which is why she currently serves as an advocate for hacking victims. Her news appearances often touch on the subjects of cyber safety, internet predators, and cyberbullying. Cassidy joined the Kamshield team as an ambassador to get the message out about the importance of covering our devices when they are not in use.
