

Luke 18:17- Truly I tell you, anyone who will not receive the kingdom of God like a little child will never enter it". NIV

Coming to God may sound like its not hard to do. But being in a position where you say, "Ok Lord, here I am" requires humility and trust. It is so hard for us adults to be humble. We think we know it all because we have lived a significant amount of years and life has taught us many lessons. Many years ago when I was a new believer I had a childlike trust toward God. He said go, I was scared but I went anyway. He said wait I waited, He said jump I jumped, no questions asked. I did it all because I trusted Him to back me up.

My three year old daughter loves to climb and jump. My favorite game to play is catch but not catching a ball, catching her in mid air. Last year she was afraid of heights and I started doing this with her to help her get over her fear. I would put her on a high place and I tell her to jump into my arms and I assured her that I will not let her fall. At first I had to stand really close to her because she would not do it. Every time we tried it I took a small step back so she could be further away from me. Her hesitation has gone from 100 to 0. Now Im amazed at how easily she will jump on me because I have gained her trust and now she knows I will never let her fall.

If I being a sinner can love my child so much that I will never let her fall, how much more will God being a good God, will care for me! I pray that I can trust in Him the same way my little girl trusts in me. That I will jump into His will knowing that He is faithful and that He will never let me fall. Knowing that He will catch me even if Im 2 inches away from hitting the floor. And even if I do fall, and break into tiny little pieces, from every corner He will gather me and put me back together again.
