The Best Honeymoon Destinations in Maui

Maui offers plenty of romantic destinations, each with their own unique character. Choose one and settle in, or combine all of them into your perfect honeymoon.

1. Kihei Kihei is located on the southwest shore of Maui, the sunniest part of the island. It features six miles of beaches, so you're sure to find an ideal spot on the sand. The sunset is nothing short of spectacular; enjoy it from the beach or a sunset cruise. The lively town boasts plenty of restaurants and bars, and offers a variety of activities. From your base in town, explore some of the other extraordinary beaches on the southwest coast, including Wailea Beach, and Makena Beach, or the so-called Big Beach, which are consistently rated as some of the best in the country.
2. Lahaina Lahaina is a historic whaling village that evolved into a Maui hotspot. It was once frequented by sailors, including Herman Melville, author of "Moby Dick." Nowadays you can still get a feel for the old village as you stroll the streets. In the town's center you'll find a massive banyan tree; take some time to relax in the shade of its branches and watch life go by. Lahaina is also a great place to get a taste of local cuisine and visit a seaside luau, a typical Hawaiian evening that includes great food and traditional hula dance.
3. Hana Hana is tucked away in the eastern part of the island. Getting there requires a scenic drive down the legendary Hana Highway, which has many twists, turns, and narrow bridges, but rewards you with breathtaking landscapes and stunning views. Hana is a peaceful small town and the kind of place where time doesn't seem to exist—this is where you'll get the real aloha feeling. Just outside town, you can visit the Pools of Oheo for a swim in tranquil waters, and access Haleakala National Park.

also spectacular. Besides this, there are many hiking trails in the park, and you can even choose to camp here.

2. Go diving or snorkeling at Molokini Molokini is a partially submerged volcanic crater forming a small uninhabited island off the coast of Maui. Inside the arms of the crater lies a marine sanctuary with incredible underwater life. The crystal clear water is a wonderland of colorful corals and tropical fish. Due to the extraordinary visibility and great marine diversity this a world-class diving and snorkeling destination. There's a suitable spot for everybody, from first-time snorkelers to experienced divers.
3. Take a surfing or stand-up paddle boarding lesson Hawaii is where surfing was born, and the sport is firmly rooted in the local culture. Maybe you're satisfied with just watching the pros do their thing, but if you're feeling adventurous, you might give it a try yourself and take a lesson. Alternatively, go for stand-up paddle boarding, a variation on surfing that's easier to learn. Once you have the basics down, you can explore the coastline by stand-up paddle board, a fun and unique experience.

What to Pack for Your Honeymoon in Maui

If you take these guidelines into account, you can't go wrong!

1. Beachwear As Maui is a beach paradise, the first item on your packing list will have to be swimwear, plus some light clothes for wearing around the beach. Don't forget sun protection, including sunscreen that doesn't harm the state's coral reefs.
2. Casual clothes For most activities on Maui, casual dress is appropriate. Think shorts or loose trousers, t-shirts and tank tops and comfy flip-flops or sandals. For women, add some sundresses.
3. Aloha shirt or flowery dress When visiting a luau, men typically wear a Hawaiian shirt. For women a flowery or tropical-themed summer dress is a good choice. Instead of bringing these from home, you can also consider buying them on the island.
