Space Mtn — A Drawing of a Memory of a Photograph of You

Night Light/Aeronaut

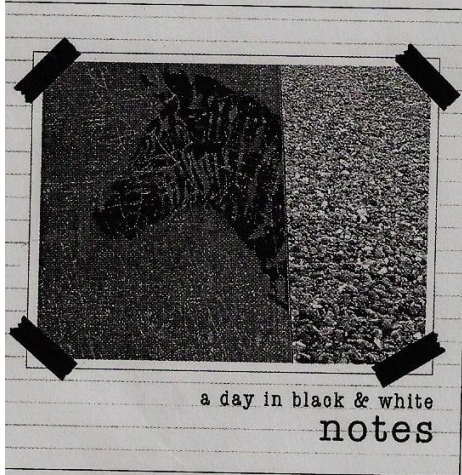

The perfect CD to pop in when you're in that mood is here. A Drawing of a Memory of a Photograph of You is a work of melodic and dramatically haunting art that takes you on a journey through the pitfalls of love, lust and life. Dina Waxman and Chris Jacks, the duo that make up Space Mtn, have completely lifted the veneer off the shiny music of the last few years and replaced it with a ghostly grittiness. Follow this album's twists and turns through the illuminations of young adulthood, and you'll wonder how you made it out the other end, or how you ever will. At least now you have a soundtrack to commemorate it. — A.C.

Saving your data has never looked cuter. Mimobots, the new überly-cool USB flash drive designed by urban artist Yahid Rodriguez, have journeyed a long way from home (the galaxy 4210 to be exact) to add some fun to the electronic revolution. The funky and functional creatures, from the Cosmo and upcoming Go series, are hi-speed 2.0 USB and available in very limited quantities — only between 250 and 1,000 are up for adoption. These feisty little critters work with both Windows and Mac and come in three drive sizes: 256 MB, 512 MB and 1 GB. Priced between $69.95 and $139.95, it's well worth it to stash all your info in style. Oh, and to get you revved up while saving and storing, each Mimobot from the Cosmo series comes preloaded with exclusive original music mixes by DJ DB. Scoop up your own (like the Vera, pictured here) at Mimoco.com.

Level Plane Records

You like punk? Good. You'll love Notes, the new album from punkers A Day in Black & White. Hailing from D.C., a city practically bursting at the seams with punk history, A Day in Black & White have set their own course, with their own rules and their own style, but are still capable of keeping a sense of tradition alive. This group has recorded an album that places musicality first and everything else a distant second. But you need to listen closely because each track pulsates with its own energy and offers up lyrics that you'll want to hear just one more time, and then again. — Autume Correia-Montague
