

Help Your Child Communicate with Confidence

ASSESSMENT, THERAPY, AND SUPPORT FOR STUTTERING, ARTICULATION, LANGUAGE, AND AUTISM SPECTRUM DISORDERS

Building Confidence

Does your child struggle to communicate? Does she have trouble engaging in her classroom or interacting with other children? Difficulty with verbal communication may produce anxiety, shame, and fear, and may hold your child back from all that she can accomplish. As a speech therapist I empower children using techniques tailored to their unique communication needs to help them speak with greater ease, develop confidence, and reduce negative thoughts and emotions.

Interactive Sessions

My sessions are child-directed, and promote creativity and fun through playing games and engaging in physical activities. I feel it's important for both parents and children to take ownership of working through challenges, and I encourage you to join in your child's sessions where I'll teach you the tools you can use at home to help your child be successful.

Expectations for Success

Children struggling with stuttering will have greater confidence and ease when speaking. Those with articulation issues (difficulty saying sounds correctly) will learn to fully correct their problem sounds.

Children with autism spectrum disorders will have improved ability to make new friends, join and maintain conversations, and solve problems, and handle emotions.

My Journey

Speech disorders are deeply personal to me as I was a stutterer all throughout childhood. When I was in my 20s I realized that I wasn't succeeding in the ways that I wanted to because my stuttering was holding me back. Overcoming my challenges with speech was one of the most empowering things I've ever experienced! Now as a speech therapist, I love getting to cheer on my clients as they experience that same excitement when they have their own moments of victory.
